

Should Pension Funds be Financing Infrastructure in Africa?

Gerald Gondo
Business Development Executive, RisCura

Executive Summary

Infrastructure as an asset class can provide a distinct addition to African pension and investment portfolios and is increasingly being considered. In principle, the asset class presents a compelling natural “fit” to the longer-term liability profile of most pension funds given the investment horizon of most infrastructure investments, with the primary appeal of this asset class being the potential to deliver a predictable cashflow stream over time.